Conceived by the visionary Baha Eddin Hadid, the UAE-based company started from humble regional roots and transformed into a global trusted aviation partner to its customers. Starting with commercial airlines, private operators, and international organizations, HADID has emerged as the pioneering name in aviation services. Headquartered in Dubai Airport Freezone, the company is strategically positioned in one of the world's most dynamic aviation hubs, stretching its impacts across multiple continents and leading the industry with operational excellence.Informational Paragraphs: HADID International Services started its mission quite clearly-ensuring timely, premier aviation solutions tailored to the specific needs of clients in the Middle East and North Africa. It has gradually expanded its operation over the years, growing from providing regional support alone into a full service global aviator. HADID opened its first office in the UAE in 1999 under the Sharjah Airport Freezone. This milestone proved to be a turning point for the company in pursuing its mission to become a regional power, and in 2003, HADID relocated its headquarters to DAFZA to position the company at the heart of global air transit.HADID rapidly embraced technology into aviation management with its early systems. In 2002, the organization produced the world's first commercially available flight management system named MASTER. This later developed into COMPASS, which happens to be the advanced Customer Relationship Management (CRM) tool to contribute to the facilitation of all flight-based activities globally. It also marked a new benchmark in aeronautic technology because it helped ensure client experiences and complex flight operations could now be delivered effectively regardless of how dispersed in time and regulatory environments were. It was the first of its kind in the aviation business market by offering such an innovative approach through COMPASS.Further extending its global ambitions, HADID continued to foray into the European, UK, and United States markets in 2006. Being a member of the National Business Aviation Association (NBAA) also added to the company's repute within the business aviation community. By 2010, the HADID had expanded into New Delhi, India, and beyond Asia as well, with robust bases in a number of other international markets. Their reputation for reliability and innovation made them one of the preferred partners among business leaders, government agencies, and private jet operators worldwide.On the continent, HADID achieved some really important steps: opening its office in Niger in 2012 and joining AFBAA as a founding member in 2013. These strategic steps further supported HADID's penetration across the entire African continent while strengthening its commitment to nurturing growth and cooperation within the aviation industry on a global scale. In 2018, HADID took the investment to Italy's Riviera Airport by infusing 2.5 million euros into the Fixed Base Operator, FBO, under the HADID Riviera, thus showing its commitment to advancing business aviation infrastructure in Europe.Today, HADID is a trusted and established ground-handling partner of IATA, representing its commitment toward industry standards and ensuring safe operation. This company, through its operations, secures relationships that represent excellence in service delivery, whether at ground handling or strategic aviation solutions. HADID has been emphasizing compliance and innovation throughout the journey. With ISO 9001, ISO 14001, and OHSAS 18001, the company assures its clients of high-quality, environmentally friendly, and safe aviation services. All its offerings, ranging from flight planning, charter management, on-ground support, to maintenance services, make it a comprehensive one-stop solution for all global aviation needs.This UAE-based aviation leader exemplifies the vision and entrepreneurial spirit that have made the Middle East a critical hub in the global aviation landscape. As HADID International Services continues to soar, it stays committed to innovation, client-focused solutions, and sustainable practices meant to advance aviation in the best way possible. With a legacy of over four decades, HADID is a testament to visionary leadership being the transformative power of relentless excellence.
