Maine cabin masters episodes

201720182019202020212022202320242025Since the 1960s, Dave Wilkinson has dreamed of owning a camp on Bear Pond. His father spent summers logging on the lake, and Dave would set up a simple teepee camp on the shores wherever he could. A decade ago the Wilkinson family, Dave, his wife Kelly, and sons Rex and Cy, realized their dream, purchasing "Wit's End" in Hartford, ME. But a nasty winter storm and a fallen tree threatened to destroy the camp. Heartbroken, the Wilkinsons called on Chase and the Cabin Masters for a rescue. The structure will be reinforced to stand the test of time and, with Rex and Cy both expecting their first child, space will be added for the growing family to spread out in. The Wilkinsons are funky people, and the Cabin Masters plan to not only preserve but celebrate the camp's oddities, complete with a fresh face on Dave's old teepee.An old fish tale claims that before the Andersen family became owners of their Clary Lake camp in 1964, $5 would buy a stay at the cabin, complete with a massage and a bottle of moonshine. True or not, sisters Charlene Andersen and Pennilyn Dudley fondly recall many stories from the last 50 years of living at the camp. Though well-loved and well-lived in throughout the years, the camp has not gotten the TLC it's deserved. The sisters are hoping that, with a primp and pop of color, Chase and the Cabin Masters team can restore the health of their family camp.The Eldridge family has lived on Cobbosseecontee Lake for nearly a century. For the last thirty-years they've been the infamous owners of the biggest eyesore on the lake - a dilapidated one-story structure with chipping paint and a collapsing retaining wall. Now, with the help of Chase, Ryan and the rest of the Cabin Masters, Ryan's younger brother Rhett and his wife Caroline will no longer be the owners of the biggest eyesore on shore. However, as the team begins to tear into the old shack, they realize this little job has some of the biggest problems they've ever faced.Mike and Linda White's cabin on Great Pond in Belgrade, ME, is a true family camp. In 1957, Linda's father sold his Ford convertible for the funds to purchase the shell of the cabin and, after adding interior walls, a kitchen, and a statement red fireplace, gifted it to his daughter. When the Whites married in 2019, Linda not only gained a husband but also expanded her family to include three children, their spouses, and six grandchildren. Now, to fit the whole family comfortably for generations to come, the newlyweds need to expand and upgrade their cabin -- and they consider Chase and the Cabin Masters the most qualified for the job. Making the cabin bigger and brighter, the Cabin Masters will add a daylight basement with a bathroom, two bedrooms, and an open living area. They'll also preserve Linda's father's touches, including the original hardwood floors and the red fireplace. When it's all said and done, the White family will have a camp large enough for the entire clan to live life at its very best.You never know what's at the end of a dirt road in Maine, which is where the Hamill family's 1963 Mount Vernon cabin is creepily isolated. When owner Ike Hamill's father purchased his dream camp in 1996, after spending many years and many river trips wistfully gazing upon it, little did he know that it would become his son's favorite place to write horror novels - especially during a thunderstorm. For the rest of the Hamill family, the cabin is a place of fun and enjoyment. Though they love that it's as rustic as they come, with only the bare minimums- 300 square feet and no kitchen, bathroom or electricity- the Hamill family hopes that Chase and the Cabin Masters can improve the camp's livability. By adding electricity, running water, and an addition that would double the size of the camp, the Cabin Masters will create the cabin Ike's father has always dreamed of, rustic charm and all.Tim and Patty Costin met in Maine as teenagers and fell in love not too far from Farr's Cove, where they purchased their first lakeside home together in 1990. Now, thirty years later and parents to two sons, also named Tim and Pat, the growing Costin family needs more space than their hundred-year-old camp provides. As new grandparents, Tim and Patty want to create a family home they can watch their grandchildren grow up and enjoy, just as their sons have enjoyed for the past three decades on Farr's cove.As children, Chase and Ashley would spend their summers at the Kennebec Valley YMCA. Ashley believes her years at the Y may have inspired and cultivated her love of design today. Now, decades later, the summer camp of their youth is in desperate need of a new Arts and Crafts building; and with no budget for the project, the YMCA knows there's only one team willing to take the job: Chase, Ashley and the rest of the Cabin Masters. With help from the community, Chase and the team race against winter to finish the build before the snow starts flying.Nate Laffin and his family fell in love with the "The Little Red Camp" as soon as they saw it. Located on Cobbosseecontee Lake, this 200-year old boathouse turned cabin is a rare find because it is stationed directly on the water, something a potential camp owner would never be able to find today. Chase and his team will have to figure out how to keep the cabin safely near the water, all while re-enforcing it, addressing rot issues, uneven walls and ultimately creating more space for the Laffins to be able to enjoy their summer retreat with their two young daughters.For 40 years Dave Emmith dreamed of following in his grandparents footsteps and owning a camp on Annabessacook Lake in Winthrop, ME. In 2006 when land on the lake went up for sale, he jumped on the opportunity. From there, Dave set out with plans to construct a cabin. With the help of his family, they were able to build the camp within 72 hours. Now, as a recent retiree, Dave is looking to turn the cabin into a getaway for his wife and himself. However, the cabin that was built in 72 hours is lacking some of the most common creature comforts. For starters, there are no bedrooms. With that, the Emmith's want to add more space to the camp, create a master bedroom and separate the two bathrooms the camp does have so that they can enjoy all the cabin has to offer with their family and friends.The Cabin Masters count down their Top 10 summer camps that offer the most supreme grilling, lakeside chilling and summer shenanigans. Plus, Chase, Ashley and Ryan share a number of deleted scenes and reveal incredible cabin transformations.Ashley takes the lead as she reminisces about her favorite Cabin Master memories. From the clever and crazy ways Chase has brought them to new camps to what it's really like to work with Lance, fun and laughter are around every corner in her top picks.Chase takes a trip down memory lane as he reveals insider info that only the Cabin Masters know. From sharing the lasting impression his father left on him to the moments that made him question why he got into this business, Chase tells all.The Cabin Masters kid around as they count down their Top 10 best camps for kids. They'll fly down zip-lines, make moose calls, build a giant board game, and create kid-friendly play rooms, while revisiting kid-friendly cabins that appeal to everyone's inner child.Ryan leads the charge on this trip down memory lane as he dishes out insider info on the Cabin Masters. He'll reveal what his life was like before becoming a carpenter, what it's like building with Chase and how he really feels about working with Ashley.Chase, Ryan and Ashley bare all by answering questions asked by their viewers on social media. They'll reveal behind-the-scenes anecdotes, a special ode to each of their High School Alma Maters, and never-before-seen footage of the team rebuilding the circa 1807 Damariscotta Fish Ladder Chase, Ashley and Ryan get bundled up as they count down their top ten winter camps. They've had to deal with frozen tools, weather delays and blinding blizzards to renovate and insulate cabins that are made for getting warm by the fire during the winter months.Featuring deleted footage and extended scenes, the Cabin Masters showcase all the custom knick-knacks that slipped through the cracks. They'll revisit the good, bad and just plain ugly one-of-a-kind pieces that never got their moment to shine.For Ted Wiederhorn, a cabin on the ocean front was a dream he had all his life. Now he finally has his wish granted after purchasing an abandoned lobster shack on a peninsula, only accessible by boat or hike. But the property has fallen into disrepair, and it's up to the Cabin Masters to get this shack up and shaking once again. The project will include updating the old lobster shack to create a vibrant new living space with Solar, new docks for ease of access, and removing piles of refuse by barge. With a tight deadline and a $50,000 budget, the Cabin Masters have a nautical build ahead of them.A family with a legacy of enjoying the lakes of Maine just bought a 30-year-old Gambrel Garage with an efficiency apartment on the second floor located at Flying Pond. But the apartment is too small and outdated for the family to stay in together. Chase and the Cabin Masters arrive early in winter to have this camp completely remodeled in time for summer. With slippery and cold weather conditions, and the entire first floor needing to be converted from a garage into a living space, the Cabin Masters have much to accomplish in a short amount of time. But Chase and the team transform the space into a dream cabin, giving it a beautiful cottage feel and more than doubling the living space. The Chadwick family has purchased a cabin built in 1906 by the Cony family, and now need the Cabin Masters help for a long overdo remodel. Fun fact, the Cony family also built Chase, Dixie, and Ashley's old high school. Not so fun fact, Cony high school is the rival of Ryan, Brad, and Jedi's old high school, Gardiner. Can the team overcome their past schoolyard grudges to fix a rotting roof, completely remodel the interior, and add in a specialty fire pit and outdoor bar all on a tight 8 week deadline?The crew restores a cabin owned by actress Bette Davis for Chase's wife, Sarah as a tribute to her late mom. With only 12 weeks and $40,000 budget the team works fast to update the interior with a new kitchen and bigger windows.A family that has owned land in Maine for over 100 years has recently re-purchased some land they had sold in the past. With the land and cabin back in the family, it's up to the Cabin Masters to update it. Chase and team start by building an entirely new bedroom and bathroom. They also landscape the property in muddy and frozen winter conditions. Last, they find their centers while creating a yoga and meditation space in front of gorgeous picture windows.Suggest an edit or add missing contentBy what name was Maine Cabin Masters (2017) officially released in India in English?Answer (a Titles & Air Dates Guide) Last updated: Wed, 12 Mar 2025 -1:00 A team rescues abandoned cabins deep in the backwoods of Maine.
