In English grammar, a subject is the part of a sentence that indicates what it is about or determines who or what performs the action. In simpler terms, a subject of a sentence is the person, place, or thing that is performing the action. For a sentence must agree with each other or must be in an agreement. What is meant by that is the subject is the sentence is singular, the verb must be plural. There are some exceptions to this rule too. As simple as this sounds, the problem arises since the plural form of a subject (nouns) ends with the letter s and the singular form of the verbs ends with s.In this edition, we aim to help students understand the subject-verb agreement by allowing them to practice it with the worksheet provided. There are several different types of exercises, students are asked to color the circle of the verb that matches the sentence. Advise them that I, you, we, and they are followed by have and he, she and it are followed by have and the verb must agree in number. If a subject is in singular form the verb needs to be singular and if the subject is plural the verb should be plural too. Singular subjects go with singular verbs and plural subjects go with singular verbs, that is the rule grammar dictates. In the following exercises, students have to keep that in mind and choose the correct form of the verb that matches with its subjects and write in on the blank space provided. In the next exercises, students need to circle the verb in the sentences and draw a line to match it with the correct and grammatically sound sentence. Download the worksheet, print and distribute these among the class. Ask the students to go through the questions and solve them on their own. Step in if required.
