Watch Now If you have a child who likes coding, chances are youve heard of Code.org, games. Code.org, a non-profit dedicated to building coding competencies and supporting students from underrepresented groups, is a common and useful site for learning how to code. Today we'll share two of Code.org games, and other applications and share them with friends. I'll share some of my favorite games for kids to enjoy coding, as well as some games that are best for each grade level, and even some Minecraft games - since it's so popular! Explore Code.org is a great resource for young coders who are just at the beginning of their programming education. The site offers fun games, development platforms, a safe way to share code and see peers work, and more. Every year, Code.org is a great resource for young coders who are just at the beginning of their programming education. and can help introduce coding in schools or at home. To get kids started with coding, Code.org offers two key in-browser applications: the Game Lab and the App Lab. Both applications are development environments that allow students to create their own programs using code blocks. There are many starter projects and walkthrough projects that are accessible to beginner coders, but plenty of options for intermediate or advanced students as well. App Lab is more suited to older, more experienced coders and offers a text-based coding option, while Game Lab is great for younger kids who want to get their feet wet. For live guidance making cool games, enroll your child in an award-winning online Scratch coding class designed by experts from Google, Stanford, and MIT. Discover Free Games on Code.org Discover several different Code.org games that you can play, customize, and modify. While there are many, many examples of Code.org games, these ones are both fun to experiment and interact with and great at teaching coding concepts. 1. This ones pretty straightfor to start, as it is geared towards beginners and has clear directions. Follow the instructions at the top of the screen, and click run once you have placed your blocks to make the code work and pass the level. Sports game is great for students who have no experience programming and who want a directed approach to learning. Code.org Dance Party Dance Party Dance Party is similar in feel to Sports Game in that it will guide you through the creation of a full program, block by block. Instead of a sports theme, however, your favorite songs. Once again, follow the instructions at the top of the screen to get started. This ones a little more tricky than Sports Game, so make sure you feel confident in Sports Game, so make sure y silly, yet entertaining program that can be easily modified. To play this game, click run and then poke the pig as many times as you can in ten seconds. Poke the Pig is a great project to work on after you have mastered Sports Game and Dance Party. Want to make this game, you could also change the pig to a different animal, or even let the user choose which animal they like to see.4. Slider Sketch is a digital Etch-a-Sketch that lets you draw pictures by moving your cursor left, right, up, and down. Create skylines, abstract art, or even write your name! There are numerous ways you can customize this project. Remix it, and then experiment with different parameters. Can you figure out how to change the color of the pen? Examine the code blocks that use the slider as an input. Can you add a slider that allows the pen to move diagonally?5. Code.org Bounce Game The Bounce Game is your typical, pong-style tennis game. As you play, you move your paddle back and forth to intercept the moving ball before it drops below the screen, and try to score points by aiming the ball at coins that appear. Be careful, though - the better you do, the faster the ball will move. The code for this game is already written out completely, but you can remix and create your own version!
