always fun to see if the list of the top 10 most wealthy musicians has changed or completely shifted. The data for this year is in, so it's time for an update. Just remember, these values and fluctuations based on a host of variables and publicly available documents, but they've got to be pretty close! This is an interesting concept because it proves two things to upcoming and ambitious musicians: It is possible to build immense amounts of money as a music artist. It allows you to grow your wealth and income even more by breaking into Hollywood, Broadway, and becoming an Entrepreneur. The struggle is real and lots of artists pay their dues and never break through into the mainstream. If you want to make the leap, get ready to become a marketer on top of writing songs and playing instruments, like the following top 10 richest music artist in Canada of all time after selling over 200 million records! After her $500,000 per show. Take that info and do this math: she performed her 1000th show in Las Vegas in 2016. Between 2011 and 2019, her Las Vegas residency has been honored Canadian and French titles for her civilian merits and contributions. She is to be addressed as "Celine Dion, CC OQ ChLD." She has been diagnosed with a rare condition called stiff person syndrome in May 2023. Change: 1 - Herb Alpert (and the Tijuana Brass band) have released five #1 albums and 28 total albums on the Billboard charts. His other notable awards are S $200 million. His other ventures have included professional sculpting and a line of perfume, which he likens to music with its "high notes and low notes." Trivia Fact: Herb Alpert is the only musician to hit #1 on the Billboard Hot 100 as both a vocalist in 1968 and an instrumentalist (trumpet) in 1979. Change: 1 - This lady has been in the game for a long time, pumping out pop hits since the '80s and forward, experiencing all of the ups and downs the industry has faced over the years. Alongside her musicianship, she's a Golden Globe-winning actress, author of several children's books, fashion designer, owner of Maverick Records, and owner of a series of health clubs. The real wealth comes from her tireless touring, having played more live shows than any other female musician ever, making her the highest-grossing solo touring artist of all time! She's possibly the hardest working woman in show business. Trivia Fact: The Guinness Book of World Records lists Madonna as the best-selling female recording artist of all time! She's possibly the hardest working woman in show business.
Industry Association of America (RIAA) lists her as the second highest-certified female artist in the United States, behind Barbara Streisand. Change: 1 - P. Diddy, A.K.A. Puff Daddy, Puffy, Diddy, Sean Combs, Sean John, etc. I'm sure there's more. This kind of marketing keeps you relevant, as silly as it is. We all could learn from this master, which are there's more. has earned him the seventh spot on the list. He went beyond his own recordings to operating his own label. Bad Boy Entertainment. This label launched the careers of guys like The Notorious B.I.G. and Mase. Other successes include his Sean John clothing line, perfume line, and hit television show Making the Band on MTV. However, his net worth could be at risk following his recent incarceration. Trivia Fact: Like many of the richest people in the world (Steve Jobs, Bill Gates, Kanye West, etc.), Puff Daddy is also a college dropout, leaving a business major program. Ironically, Forbes listed Diddy as a top 40 entrepreneur under the age of 40 in 2002. Change: +$450M & 15 - The Boss himself! A perfect nickname for a man like Bruce Springsteen, icon of American Rock and Roll. You'd be hard-pressed to find anyone who isn't at least familiar with his name. Considered one of the greatest songwriters of all time, he has released 20 studio albums, and sold 135 million records globally. He's won a whopping 20 Grammy Awards, plus two Golden Globes, one Academy Award, and a special Tony award! In 1999, he was inducted in both the Songwriters Hall of Fame, and the Rock and Roll social issues. His songs often have social and political commentaries. He is a staunch advocate for LGBTQ+ rights and Women's Rights, even canceling his own shows in protest. Trivia Fact: Bruce wasn't always fond of the nickname "The Boss." He has a dislike for bosses (very on brand), and it made him uncomfortable. It was given to him before he became a star, overseeing the collection of his band's fee from the owners of the clubs they played at, and distributing it. Change: 1 - There's no way you wouldn't find a member of the Beatles on this list, especially Paul McCartney. He and John Lennon basically shared writing credits for their entire run, guaranteeing both of them continued riches forever. Tag on Paul's killer solo career, the band Wings, and collaborations with Michael Jackson and most recently Kanye West, and you've got a guy who's been a relevant pop icon since the early 60's. The multi-instrumentalist has written or co-written 32 songs to reach #1 on the Billboard Hot 100. Paul's song Yesterday is the most covered song of all time, having been remade by over 2,200 artists and bands. Talk about some royalties! He's also been knighted and honored every which way possible, musically or otherwise. It's reported that he holds over 25,000 copyrights. Check our detailed article to understand how Paul McCartney built his incredible net worth! Trivia Fact: The Guinness Book of World Records recognizes Paul McCartney twice, as the most honored composer and performer in music as well as the most successful songwriter ever. Change: 1 - You are now looking at the King. You may not know his music. Broadway is almost synonymous with Webber, with him having penned the music of 20 of their greatest hits: The Phantom of the Opera, Jesus Christ Superstar, Cats, Evita, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, School of Rock, and on and on... the dude's cleaning up. These shows are still happening nightly all across the world (some have been running for over a decade straight), providing him profit from everything related to his products, including soundtracks, merchandise, film adaptations, and ticket sales. He even collects royalties from two songs he wrote for none other than Elvis Presley (the true King!) Trivia Fact: Andrew Lloyd Webber has been granted knighthood and a title of nobility for his contributions to music, in addition to his 6 Tony's, 3 Grammy's, an Academy Award, and far too many more to list here. The proper way to address him today is "The Right Honorable The Lord Lloyd-Webber, Kt." Change: -$300M & 1 - She has been storming through our ranking over the past couple of years and even reached the top for a few months. A huge portion of her wealth ($1.4B) comes from her business ventures. She has launched in 2017 a beauty line called Fenty Beauty along with the French luxury group LVMH. She also owns a lingerie company called Savage x Fenty. She capitalizes heavily on her huge social media presence to promote her brands. But don't get fooled by her recent business successes. She has been a pop music powerhouse since her first success in 2005 and remains one of the most streamed artists despite not having released an album in years. Trivia Fact: Born and raised in Barbados, Rihanna is still celebrated in her country of origin. In 2008, the Prime Minister of Barbados, Rihanna is still celebrated in her country of origin. In 2008, the Prime Minister of Barbados, Rihanna is still celebrated in her country of origin.
every year, listening to her music. Change: +$500M & 13 - Taylor got her start singing at local talent shows and fairs in her small hometown. Her mom and dad, passionate about their daughter's talent, moved the family to Nashville when she was just a teenager. This is where her demo was heard by Scott Borchetta, the man who would help launch her career. She has since released 10 studio albums, with numerous chart-topping singles and albums. Taylor took a swing at Hollywood with a role in the 2010 movie Valentine's Day and graced various TV screens with guest appearances. The recent success of "Taylor Swift: The Eras Tour", the highest grossing tour ever by a woman allowed her to ioin the billionaire club. Trivia: Taylor's song "Love Story" was inspired by a Shakespearean tale, though, ever the optimist when it comes to love, she opted for a feel-good ending. Her swift rise to fame made her the youngest solo artist to write and record a #1 hit on the U.S. Hot Country Songs chart. When the opportunity came for induction into the Songwriters Hall of Fame, Taylor was actually out on tour but made sure to pass along an appreciative response during her concert. He's not a businessman, he's a businessman, he's a business, maaaaan. This is what happens after you score 19 Grammy's, sell over 100 million records, and launch a successful clothing company Rocawear and record label Roc-A-Fella Records. The most recent jump in net worth is thanks to yet another unbelievable business success as he pocketed $750 million following the partial sale of his D'USSÉ cognac to Bacardi. Crowned billionaire in 2019, Jay-Z almost tripled his net worth in 4 years. All it's going to take is a few more "retirements" and "come backs" and he should continue climbing the billionaire list. Maybe one extra come back cycle to make up for his goof with Tidal and Aspiro. Of all his shenanigans, Jay-Z admits to having shot his own brother at the age of 12 for stealing some of his jewelry. I don't know if that adds up to street credibility or the stupidity of being a kid. Trivia Fact: Jay-Z was once the president of Def Jam Recordings. He's also a licensed sports agent, working with his company Roc Nation Sports. Not everyone maintains their slot on the list. Making gobs of money is one thing, but keeping it is another story. Whether an artist blows their fortune, loses momentum in the public eye, or fails to make the same business investments as other stars, sadly some slip from the top 10. Here's a list of our fallen friends. Change: 11 - Bono is a strange one. The lead singer of U2, Bono is a strange one strange one. The lead singer songwriter and musician, he is also a venture capitalist, philanthropist, and general businessman. He's such a huge figure for the Irish people (and unapologetically outspoken) that he's been the target of terrorist threats and actions. Like many on this list, Bono has been awarded a knighthood. How many dragons have you killed?! He is to be addressed as "Paul David Hewson, KBE OL." Trivia Fact: For being a huge philanthropist and social activist, it was a surprise when his name appeared in the Paradise Papers, which provided proof and exposed globally many wealthy people engaging in tax evasion. The shining star of American country music, Dolly Parton! A celebrity that is as nice in person as she appears on camera. She began as a songwriter before debuting as a singer in 1967, and has written and composed over 3,000 songs, like "Jolene" and "I Will Always Love You" (yes, the Whitney song!). Her record sales total to more than 100 million worldwide. Dolly has also been nominated for a Golden Globe for Best Actress for her role in The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas. She's won 11 Grammy Awards, and has been nominated for a Tony, and an Academy Award! More than that, she is a business woman and celebrated philanthropist. She co-owns The Dollywood Company, which manages entertainment venues like the Dollywood Theme Park, among others. She also founded the Dollywood Foundation, which handles projects involving poverty relief and education in her hometown, East Tennessee. Trivia Fact: Dolly Parton's Imagination Library was founded in 1995, mailing free books to children. It has since expanded to the entirety of the United States, as well as the UK, Canada, Australia, and Ireland. Today, there are around two million children registered, and the program has sent out more than 190 million books. Change: 12- Julio is one of the top 10 record sellers in history, selling over 250 million albums worldwide. As you can imagine, his awards are too numerous to list. His first album was released in 1969 and he's rarely missed a year releasing another with the most recent being in 2017. There's hardly a country on the planet in which he hasn't been named the most popular artist. In addition to these album sales, it's said he's performed over 5000 concerts. Trivia Fact: Julio was once a professional soccer player, quitting due to a car wreck injury. His last name "Iglesias" translates to "churches."
After failing to sell his $28 million dollar home, he had it bulldozed and rebuilt it! Change: +$45M - Well, get your dancing shoes ready because we're talking about the one and only Elton John! He gets us tapping our toes and singing along to over 300 million of his records sold worldwide. And let's not forget those glittering awards, he's lugged home a whole truckload of Grammys, Oscars, and Tonys. A bona fide member of both the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and the Songwriters Hall of Fame, Sir Elton has definitely left his mark on the music scene. The not-so-secret to his success lies in that killer combination of tickling the ivories with razzmatazz, belting out tunes with gusto, dressing in quirky costumes that would make a peacock jealous, and last but not least, having a songwriting buddy in Bernie Taupin, Together, they've cooked up some serious chart-toppers, like "Rocket Man", "Tiny Dancer", and "Goodbye Yellow Brick Road", Trivia; Elton John is one of the highest-selling music artists ever. He has had 50 singles land in the top 40 and a winning streak of seven #1 albums on the US charts. And as if his music wasn't enough, he's also a big-hearted philanthropist, especially when it comes to the battle against HIV/AIDS. John has raised $450 million through the Elton John AIDS Foundation, all going towards prevention, treatment, and care of HIV/AIDS worldwide. Change: -$50M - There's a lot of crap out there trying to undermine the D.R.E., but the fact remains, he's impacted rap, music, and the culture of the United States. Very few people can say that. From being a member of N.W.A., Death Row Records, and operating his own label, he also launched several proteges, including Snoop Dogg, Xzibit, Eminem, Kendrick Lamar, and 50 Cent. Dr. Dre has only released 2 albums under his own name. Otherwise, he's a guest star, prolific beat producer, and they might be the most powerful. Like many, Dre has even had some acting roles, though at the end of the day it didn't seem to be among his strong suit. The self-proclaimed "First Billionaire in Hip-Hop" was never really entered the billionaire club once you account. He would likely have still been in our top 10 if it wasn't for his recent and costly divorce, you can read more about it here. Trivia Fact: Dr. Dre sold his world's top headphones company Beats By Dre to Apple in 2014, launching him way up this list. The marketing and products are impeccable, which made it an easy $3 billion dollar decision for Apple. Change: -$100M - Kanye West is no longer a billionaire. He is not even in our ranking! Another solid artist that has been helped by his incredible ability to create hugely successful business ventures. His Yeezy brand gives him large revenues thanks to several collaborations with huge brands like Adidas and Louis Vuitton. He even owns part of his ex-wife Kim Kardashian's shapewear brand Skims. He is one of the most critically acclaimed musicians and producers of the past 20 years and has won an impressive 24 Grammy awards. Like others, he's started his own record label GOOD Music. Although he is mostly known for his hip-hop and gospel. He is also famous for his collaborations with other hip-hop A-listers like Jay-Z. His net worth is disputed; in 2020, financial media company Bloomberg estimated his net worth at $6.6 Billion, with $4.7 Billion coming from collaboration between his brand Yeezy and various apparel companies like Adidas or Gap. However, following antisemitic statements made by the celebrity in October 2022, Adidas announced they were cutting ties with the rapper. This lead Forbes to revise Kanye's net worth estimate significantly lower, to $400 million.
We see him a little higher at $500 million. Trivia Fact: While Kanye West has achieved an icon status around the world, he has seen music fan try to bloc his attendance at various festival in 2015. Change: +$30M - Mariah Carey used to be a solid member of our top 10, but she is now far from it and will likely not get back there anytime soon. She hasn't made any major moves lately and her movie Glitter was a flop. Part of her constant appearances in Christmas and New Years' Eve celebrations. She holds the record for the longest-running U.S. #1 single (16 weeks straight!), and is the third-best-selling female artist in the U.S. She's also the only artist to ever top the Billboard Music Awards, 10 American Music Awards, 14 Billboard Music Awards, and more. Trivia Fact: Mariah Carey is one of the rare vocalists with a clean five-octave vocal range and her controlled use of the whistle register. More than a mere musician, Jimmy Buffett has built an empire. This is what results after producing over 30 albums' worth of timeless hits, selling more than 20 million records worldwide, and founding Margaritaville, a lifestyle brand that's a cocktail of resorts, merchandising, and radio. Buffett's most recent leap in net worth came in the wake of the successful launching of the Margaritaville retirement communities in 2017. Crowned a billionaire, Jimmy Buffett has carved out a unique position in the entertainment industry over the past five decades. His clever switch from being a country artist to embodying the laid-back beach-bum persona paid off, turning him into a cult figure. He's living proof that mistakes can indeed be stepping stones to success. After all, who'd forget his initial blunder with "Big Rig" which tanked? Trivia: Jimmy Buffett was once ejected from a Miami Heat basketball game for cursing. He is also a licensed pilot and a bestselling author, having penned three #1 bestsellers as listed in the New York Times. It'll take some serious power moves for newcomers to displace someone from the top 10 richest musicians list. Each of the tycoons above has their hands in a lot of jars that extend far beyond music. The next generation better get ready to hustle! I see some possible contenders out there: Eminem, Justin Bieber, or Beyoncé joining her husband. But it goes the other way around too. Any of these movie or TV celebrities out there could make the right investments into their own music career (like Drake) and if they can start trending, then boom, instant billionaire status. Others that almost make the cut include: Beyoncé at $760 million thanks to her music, touring, clothing lines, and product endorsements. Gloria and Emilio Estafan at $450 million mostly thanks to her fashion business ventures. Gilbert "Berner" Milam at $410 million mostly thanks to his "Cookies" cannabis conglomerate Barbra Streisand at $400 million due to her musical success and illustrious Hollywood and TV career. Lady Gaga is at $320 million thanks to her musical success and high-grossing tours. Justin Bieber at $285 million thanks to his huge musical success and business ventures. Drake is at $250 million thanks to his solid musical success and private investments. Michael Jackson would be in the top 10 for sure had he not passed so early, although he was known to accumulate debt as well. I tell you what, I'd be happy to just be in the top 10,000 most wealthy musicians list. This is the table for the top 10 richest musicians in the World. It contains their names, net worth, and nationality. However you've been introduced to my music, I hope it gives you the same gift it gave me as I wrote it. If you ever decide to drop me a line, I'll do my best to respond, however I am fully committed to finishing my next album through the remainder of 2025. If you do not receive a response, please know that you matter to me, but that I am fully focused on finishing the music of Niobrara. Building a career in music are sat on fortunes worth millions of dollars. Surprisingly, not all of them are singers or frontmen. The leader and songwriter might get the lion's share of a band's riches, but there's still plenty left over for the quitarist. If that guitarists is the wealthiest of them all, take a look at our list of the 20 richest guitarists in the world. 20. Mark Knopfler -Net Worth: $95 Million As a songwriter, film score composer, guitarist, record producer, lead vocalist, and the founder of Dire Straits, Mark Knopfler is worth the grand total of $95 million, making him one of the richest men in rock and an easy candidate for our top 20. 19. Tony Iommi - Net Worth: $140 Million Up next is Ozzy Osbourne's long-suffering bandmate, Tony Iommi of Black Sabbath. As one of the greatest guitarists of all time, the techniques he developed during the band's formative years are credited with changing the shape of music as we know it today. He's currently estimated to be worth $140 million. 18. Pete Townshend - Net Worth: $150 Million Author, rocker, vocalist, songwriter, and guitarist Pete Townshend - Net Worth: $150 million. 18. Pete Townshend is best known as one of the founding members of the legendary rock group, The Who. In addition to founding the band and playing the keyboard, mandolin, drums, bass guitar, banjo, and almost everything else for them, he also acted as their principal songwriter, penning over 100 million albums worldwide. Acknowledged as one of the greatest guitarists of all time, he's won numerous awards and accolades over the course of his career, including induction into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. His current net worth is around $150 million. 17. Angus Young may dress like an overgrown schoolboy, but he's clearly earning a lot more than just pocket money These days, the AC/DC frontman and quitarist is worth a massive $160 million. Considering he's the founding member of the 14th best-selling band of all time, with sales of over 200 million records worldwide, it's hardly surprising. 16. Jimmy Page - Net Worth: $180 Million Up next is Jimmy Page, a man who's widely considered one of the most versatile and important guitarists in living memory. His work with Led Zeppelin needs little introduction. For those who prefer their music on the mellower side, neither does his contribution to The Yardbirds. A two-time inductee to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, a regular fixture on every 'Greatest Guitarist' list ever created, and an influence on almost every guitarist and musician born in the last 50 years, Page is clearly a man of immense talent, immense wealth. 15. Dave Gilmour - Net Worth: $180 Million You don't get to be the leader of one of the most commercially successful bands of all time and not have a decent amount stashed away in the bank. If you need proof, just look at Dave Gilmour, the lead guitarist and, following the death of Roger Waters, frontman of Pink Floyd. By all accounts, Gilmour has $180 million records, it's really not surprising. Other than being very rich, Gilmour has a reputation for being charitable. Over the last few years, his work in raising awareness of climate change, homelessness, and other issues has marked him out as one of rock's biggest philanthropists. 14. Kirk Hammett - Net Worth: $200 Million According to Metalhead Zone, Kirk Hammett is the richest metal guitarist in the world. Considering he's estimated to be worth a mammoth $200 million (a full $40 million more than the next richest, Tony Iommi), it's not surprising. Regularly ranked as one of the greatest guitarists of all time (both metal and otherwise), Hammett's influence on generations of metal fans and bands is hard to deny. Despite a history of substance abuse, Hammett is now clean and a happily married family man. 13. Ronnie Wood - Net Worth: $200 Million Up next is the late Rolling Stones, Ronnie Wood. His wealth might not be in the same league as some of his bandmates, but it's still considerable enough to get him a mention. A multi-instrumentalist who first found fame with the Small Faces, Wood was recruited by The Rolling Stones in 1975 after the departure of guitarist Mick Jones. Despite being an integral part of the Stones' success over the coming decade, it would take until 1990 before the band made him an official financial partner. As Celebrity Net Worth notes, until that point, he was still technically an employee and was paid a monthly salary. Even so, his involvement with the Stones still makes up the vast bulk of his equally vast wealth. 12. Brian May - Net Worth: $210 Million No one's quite sure exactly how many records Queen has sold in total. Some people put it at a conservative estimate of 170 million. Others put it at 300 million. Either way, it's a lot of records, certainly enough to make them of the world's best-selling bands of all time. And unlike certain other bands, their popularity never ceases to wane. Today, they're still selling as many albums as they were doing their heyday, with the result that the fortune of each remaining bandmate continues to swell with each passing year. Guitarist Brian May is doing the best of all the band, with a net worth that's estimated to be in the region of $210 million. 11. James Hetfield is best known as the co-founder, vocalist, rhythm guitarist, and primary songwriter for Metallica. According to IMDb, Hetfield grew up hunting, playing guitar, and was an ordinary guiet kid. By 1981, he'd clearly had enough of being guiet and ordinary and decided to form Metallica instead. Since then, he's gone on to become one of the best known and influential figures on the metal scene, with a net worth that's currently believed to be around $300 million. 10. Dave Matthews - Net Worth: $300 million and influential figures on the metal scene, with a net worth that's currently believed to be around $300 million. 10. Dave Matthews - Net Worth: Million If there's a job title missing from Dave Matthews' resume, it's yet to be found. Singer, songwriter, musician, actor, record label owner, producer, and, of course, frontman, vocalist, and guitarist for the Dave Matthews Band has enjoyed phenomenal success: according to Wikipedia, they've sold more than 20 million concert tickets and a combined total of 38 million CDs and DVDs. The band isn't, however, Matthews' sole source of income. Believe it or not, he's one of the largest private landowners in Virginia, with a property portfolio that covers hundreds, if not thousands, of acres around the state. Despite his wealth, he lives a low-key lifestyle, residing in a modest home in Seattle purchased in 2001 for just $360,000. 9. Dave Grohl - Net Worth: $320 Million Having established himself as a drummer with Nirvana, Dave Grohl went on to prove he had more than one string to his bow as the lead singer, guitarist, and primary songwriter for the Foo Fighters. Since then, he's sold a massive amount of records and accrued an equally massive fortune of $320 million. 8. Toby Keith - Net Worth: $365 Million Country artist Toby Keith is nothing if not prolific. Between 1993 and 2000, he released a new album each year, with each record shifting at least 500,000 copies. But he's not just hard-working: he's smart. In 1999, his label rejected a bunch of songs from his upcoming album, "How Do You Like Me Now." Keith bought back the rights to the album sold over 3 million copies. His subsequent albums have proved equally successful, while his 10 percent stake in independent record label Big Machine means that every time the likes of Tim McGraw, Rascal Flatts, and Taylor Swift sell an album, at least a little of that money comes to Keith. 7. Bob Dylan – Net Worth: $375 Million Bob Dylan may be known best as a songwriter and singer, but it's as rare to see him on stage without a guitar as it is to see him without a surly expression and his back to the audience. When he swapped his acoustic guitar for an electric one at The Newport Folk Festival in 1965, he changed the face of popular music forever. Since then, he's sold over 100 million records, earned ten Grammy Awards, a Golden Globe, an Academy Award, a Presidential Medal of Freedom, and even the Nobel Prize in Literature. In December 2020, Dylan sold 100 percent of his song catalog to Universal Music Publishing Group for $300 million. 6. The Edge - Net Worth: $400 Million Surprisingly enough, The Edge wasn't born 'The Edge.' Neither was he born a multimillionaire. Yet somewhere along the line, the man formerly known as David Evans has managed to gain a new name and a heaving bank account. As a founding member of U2, The Edge has won 22 Grammy Awards and sold between 150 and 170 million albums worldwide; as a guitarist, he's credited as one of the greatest of all time; and as an individual, he's worth a monster $400 million. 5. Eric Clapton - Net Worth: $450 Million Widely considered one of the best selling artists in history, a Grammy winner, an Officer of the Order of the British Empire, a Commander of the Order of the Order of the British Empire, a Commandeur de Ordre des Arts et des Lettres, and a man with a $450 million fortune. Not all of his wealth comes from music, however: his vehicle assets, real estate, and art collection are all considered 'significant.' 4. Keith Richards - Net Worth: $500 Million As a founding member of one of the best-selling rock bands of all time, Keith Richards is obviously not going to be short on cash at this point. And indeed, he's not. Having sold over 200 million records worldwide with the Rolling Stones, performed at sell-out arenas across the world, and somehow managed to survive both one of the most prodigious drug habits in rock and roll and a coconut falling on his head, 'Keef' is now worth the grand sum of $500 million. 3. Bruce Springsteen - Net Worth: $500 million Over the course of his career, Bruce Springsteen has managed to carve out a position for himself as one of rock's most respected artists. His albums have won both commercial and critical acclaim, winning numerous awards and selling more than 135 million albums worldwide. The result? According to closerweekly.com, a net worth of $500 million. 2. Jimmy Buffet might rank as one of the richest men in music, but music is by no means his only money-spinner. The global business empire spawned by his particular brand of "island escapism" music covers several very successful restaurant chains ("Cheeseburger in Paradise" and "Margaritaville Foods), and even a $1 billion retirement village in Daytona Beach, Florida. With an annual income that's believed to be around $50 million. 1. Paul McCartney? His work with The Beatles needs no introduction, while his work as a solo artist is said to generate around $50-70 million per year in touring, royalties, and licensing fees, both from his own back catalog and those of artists whose portfolios are owned by his publishing company, MPL Communications. As of today, McCartney is worth an incredible $1.2 billion. You can also read: Share on X (Twitter) Share on Facebook Share on Reddit Share on WhatsApp How old is Tony Anderson?
