

Click Here

A composite of the various photos of Jeremy Steinkewere taken over the years. The photos were taken by his mother, his father, his brother, his friends, and his family. The photos were taken at various times in his life, from his childhood to his adulthood. The photos were taken at various locations, from his home to his school to his workplace. The photos were taken at various times of the day, from the morning to the evening. The photos were taken at various ages, from a young child to a young man to a young adult. The photos were taken at various times in his life, from his childhood to his adulthood. The photos were taken at various locations, from his home to his school to his workplace. The photos were taken at various times of the day, from the morning to the evening. The photos were taken at various ages, from a young child to a young man to a young adult.

Wikimedia CommonsJasmine Richardson's yearbook photo, taken before she and Jeremy Steinke plotted the Richardson family murders. In April 2006, almost every member of the Richardson family was brutally murdered inside their home in Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada. There was only one survivor in the family: 12-year-old Jasmine Richardson. But this was no miracle. The reason why Jasmine survived the slayings is because she was responsible for the gruesome crimes. As it turned out, Jasmine and her 23-year-old "boyfriend" Jeremy Steinke had planned the fatal stabblings of Jasmine's parents and her younger brother. The horrifying killings shocked the local community and the entire nation. Jasmine Richardson had once been a bright student, sociable, and generally well-liked. She eventually became interested in social media and goth culture, hinting at changes in her. Of course, having a "goth phase" or using social media alone isn't normally a cause for concern. What was concerning, however, were the "relationships" Jasmine had with older men online. As she fell further into her rebellion, she became obsessed with controversial musicians like Marilyn Manson and even serial killers like Jeffrey Dahmer. Then, Jasmine Richardson met Jeremy Steinke, straining her relationship with her family. Forbidden from seeing the older man, she became determined to get rid of her parents once and for all. The youngest person in Canada ever convicted of multiple counts of murder, Jasmine Richardson only received a 10-year Intensive Rehabilitative Custody and Supervision sentence due to her young age at the time of the crimes. And in 2016, she then-22-year-old became a free woman. How Jasmine Richardson Went From Honor Student To Troublemaker Jasmine Richardson/MyspaceShortly after Jasmine Richardson gained reliable access to the internet, she became obsessed with social media. Jasmine Richardson was born on October 21, 1993, to Debra and Marc Richardson in Canada. Debra and Marc Richardson were former drug addicts, but they had maintained their sobriety by the time they became parents. They later welcomed a second child, their son Tyler Jacob. Things were difficult for the young family at first, and the Richardsons sometimes relied on food banks for their meals, but they eventually saved up enough money to buy a home in Medicine Hat, Alberta. Around this same time, the young Jasmine began to use the internet more often, especially early social media platforms like Myspace. Jasmine had always been a good student. She made the honor roll at school, and she participated in several activities, including a fine arts program. But at home, Jasmine was spending more and more time online — and then, at some point, something in her changed. While at a local mall in the summer of 2005, Jasmine and her friends met a group of older goth kids and became obsessed with the goth subculture. Jasmine began dressing in goth fashion, but she also became rebellious in other ways — some of which were very dangerous. Online, she lied about her age, claiming to be an older teen. She became a member of VampireFreaks.com. She posted photos that were inappropriate for her age. She claimed to be a Wiccan. She developed an interest in serial killers, especially Jeffrey Dahmer, and what she described as "kinky sh*t." Then, she met Jeremy Steinke. Inside Jeremy Steinke's Troubled Past Medicine Hat High SchoolJeremy Steinke's yearbook photo, taken before he dropped out of high school. Jeremy Allan Steinke was born on January 15, 1983 to Jacqueline May in Medicine Hat. Steinke's upbringing was turbulent. His mother was an alcoholic, and her partners regularly abused him. Her third husband, for instance, once pushed Steinke's head into a deep freezer. According to journalists Robert Reinington and Sherri Zickefosse's book Runaway Devil, Steinke's mother also moved around a lot, so Steinke never made any genuine, long-lasting friendships. He was diagnosed with ADHD. He was often bullied, and he began drinking and experimenting with drugs early on. By the 10th grade, he had dropped out of high school. Meanwhile, Steinke had also developed an elaborate persona. Wearing a vial of blood around his neck, he claimed to be a "300-year-old werewolf." By age 16, he had left his mother's home to live with his biological father, only to find the situation there wasn't much better. He moved out again shortly after, and for a time, he seemed to want to build a better life for himself. Steinke worked various jobs while attending Medicine Hat College, only to drop out and effectively give up on looking for a full-time career. Jeremy SteinkeJeremy Steinke was often mocked by his peers, some of whom called him "Stinky" because of his last name. Like Jasmine Richardson, Jeremy Steinke immersed himself in goth culture, hoping to become a metal musician. Lacking real friends, he started offering younger goths drugs and alcohol so they'd spend time with him. He also signed up for VampireFreaks, where he made disturbing posts about "liking to kill" prostitutes and "then playing with their insides." His listed "dislikes" notably included a racial slur for Black people. In January 2006, the then-23-year-old Jeremy Steinke was introduced to 12-year-old Jasmine Richardson by a mutual friend, and they quickly began "dating." Steinke claimed that Jasmine lied to him about her age, but according to his acquaintances, they frequently told him that the relationship was grossly inappropriate and that he needed to end it. Jasmine's family certainly felt the same. They forbade her from seeing Steinke, but she still regularly snuck out to see him. The two also often communicated online, more determined than ever to stay together. The Gruesome Richardson Family Murders Jasmine Richardson and Jeremy Steinke claimed to be in love. Furious at Jasmine's parents, Steinke raged on a blogging platform: "Their throats I want to slit. They will regret the shrt they have done. Especially when I see to it that they are gone. They shall pay for their insulnce [sic]. Finally there shall be silence. Their blood shall be payment!" But according to police reports, it was Jasmine who first proposed the Richardson family murders. In an online message, she told Steinke she had a plan: "It begins with me killing them and ends with living with you." Calgary HeraldThe front page of the Calgary Herald, featuring a photograph of Jasmine Richardson's parents, Jeremy Steinke was receptive to the idea, replying, "Well I love your plan but we need to get a little more creative with like details and stuff." Jasmine Richardson reportedly told friends about the plans to kill her parents, but they either didn't believe her or thought she was joking. Shortly before the murders, the duo purportedly watched Oliver Stone's 1994 film Natural Born Killers, which sees a serial killer couple murder the woman's parents before killing numerous other people across three states. Then, in April 2006, at her parents' home on a quiet residential street in Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, Jasmine Richardson and her adult "boyfriend" Jeremy Steinke followed through with their planned massacre. On April 23, 2006, a young local boy who was walking by the Richardson family home spotted what he thought was a body through a window. He immediately told his mother, who quickly called the police. Inspector Brent Secondiak of the Medicine Hat Police Service soon arrived on the scene and looked into a basement window, where he saw at least one person on the ground. He called other officers for backup, thinking they may be able to save someone in the house. But nobody inside was alive; Marc Richardson, his wife Debra Richardson, and the couple's eight-year-old son Tyler Jacob Richardson had all been fatally stabbed. And one family member, the 12-year-old daughter of the dead couple, was missing from the scene. It was initially thought that she might have been kidnapped. PinterestJasmine Richardson before the murders. "I truly believed that this person was missing and possibly abducted. It wasn't even in the realm of possibility that she was an accused," Secondiak later said of the initial investigation into the Richardson family murders. Piecing the events together, the police determined that Debra was killed first after being stabbed at least a dozen times. Marc fought back against his killer with a screwdriver, but he was ultimately stabbed to death as well, over two dozen times. Both parents' bodies were left in the basement. Tyler Jacob was left upstairs in his blood-soaked bed. Like his parents, he had been stabbed, but his throat was also slashed open. Fearing Jasmine Richardson was a victim too, the police announced that they were searching for her, "regarding a serious family matter." But after recovering evidence in her room and school locker, investigators realized that she was actually one of the prime suspects. Jasmine Richardson's Arrest And Conviction Internet ArchiveJasmine Richardson's profile on Nexopia, where she listed her age as 15. A trail of digital evidence led to Jasmine Richardson and Jeremy Steinke, mainly consisting of online messages between the two. They were soon tracked down — just one day after the bodies were found — and they were promptly arrested in Leader, Saskatchewan, Canada. Before long, police determined that Steinke had murdered Jasmine's parents downstairs, while Jasmine was upstairs in her brother's room. Witnesses later testified that the two had admitted to the murders. One witness recounted Steinke saying that the victims had been "gutted like fish," and Jasmine said her brother had "gargled" after his throat was cut. As for how the Richardson family murders were carried out, police believed that on the night of the killings, Jasmine left her home's basement window open so Steinke could break in. When Debra woke up and investigated the scene, Steinke began to stab her, and when Marc tried to help his wife, Steinke stabbed him too. Meanwhile, Jasmine began stabbing her younger brother, later claiming she thought it would be "too cruel" to leave him as an orphan, and Steinke finished that murder by slitting the boy's throat. Internet ArchiveJasmine Richardson's profile on Zorpia. At her 2007 trial, Jasmine Richardson, who was only identified as J.R. at the time because of her age, pleaded not guilty. She said she had "hypothetical" conversations about killing her family, but didn't intend to actually do it. But she was ultimately found guilty of three counts of first-degree murder and given the maximum sentence for a youth of her age — a 10-year Intensive Rehabilitative Custody and Supervision (IRCS) sentence, which included four years in a psychiatric institution and four-and-a-half years under conditional supervision. She was 13 at the time of her conviction. By 2008, Jeremy Steinke had been convicted of three counts of first-degree murder as well. Since he was an adult, he was sentenced to life in prison, with the possibility for parole after 25 years behind bars. The most bizarre in Canadian crime history. Initially, the people and the investigators believed Jasmine was just an unfortunate victim but later she, herself, shockingly turned out to be one of the perpetrators of the crime. Conclusively, Jasmine would get a decade-long span behind the bars. The law also demanded she attends a psychiatric institution among other rehabilitation programs.It's been a few years since Jasmine's sentence ended and ever since people have been wondering where the former child murdererJermaine Richardson is now. While there are a few or two reports on her current whereabouts, it is still unclear where or what exactly is she doing and resides.Where Is Jasmine Richardson Now?Multiple reports and accounts as well as several words of mouth suggest Jasmine is living in a discreet livelihood in an undisclosed location in Canada. News.Com claims Richardson supposedly is residing with a secret identity presumably to keep away attention as much as possible. Jasmine, presumably some years before she met Jeremy SteinkeHer ABCs since her release have largely remained a mystery and there's a good chance that it could be so for quite a long haul considering other cases similar to hers.Many do agree it might be for the best that Richardson lives the rest of her life as an anonymous being. Canadians, by law, cannot publish Richardson's name; they could only use the initials, J.R. People who are aware of her, describe her as a poster child for rehabilitation.Some Redditors, a few years ago, claimed to have seen a Richardson-like woman but they didn't reveal where. They however asserted Jasmine had a boyfriend who unfortunately was a drug dealer. Another Redditor reported after the release, Jasmine continued to attend the court every six months and at the time she was living in Montreal and studying at Dawson College.However the recent whatever of Jasmine is a tough enigma and as mentioned it very well may be so for ages.Jasmine Richardson And Her Boyfriend Killed The Richardson FamilyThe night was on April 22rd 2006. Investigation reports concluded that Jasmine and her then-partner Jeremy went to the house and the latter killed Mrs. Richardson first. At the time of the murder, Steinke was wearing a neoprene mask. He killed Jasmine's mother, Debra, by stabbing her with a knife 12 times. The attack also included a 12cm deep piercing to her heart. Marc and Debra, two of the three people who died in April 2006 in Medicine Hat CanadaThe knife assault of course made Debra scream which her husband, Marc heard. He came down the stairs to see what was going on but Steinke caught him off guard and he also started stabbing Jasmine's father. Jeremy attacked Steinke's father 24 times including nine times in the back.Richardson then stabbed her then-eight-year-old brother Jacob eight times ultimately killing him. It was Jeremy who killed Jasmine's brother by deeply slitting his throat and leaving him bleeding to death alongside his toys. The forensic team escorting the dead bodies of the Richardson outside their house in Medicine Hat Canada in April 2006She would take the life of her parents with the encouragement of her then-groomer, Jeremy Steinke. The following day, a young local boy happened to see the dead bodies through the window of the Richardson family house.Later, the detectives encountered the bodies of Jasmine's folks in the basement and her brother in the bedroom upstairs.According to stories, Steinke and Richardson also had a relationship going on with each other.What Was The Reason Behind Jasmine Killing Her Own Parents?A couple of hours after the police had found the dead bodies, they discovered Jasmine and Steinke at a restaurant laughing and kissing each other.Jeremy and Jasmine reportedly planned the murder so that they could escape and be together. Online activities between Jeremy and Jasmine revealed it was the latter who came up with the plan to murder her family. The late family members of Jasmine, Marc, Debra, and Jacobin one of the texts which Jasmine had written to Jeremy, the then-pre-teenager had said,I have this plan. It begins with me killing them and ends with me living with you.Another piece of the text showed Jeremy writing, "Their throats I want to slit. They will regret the s**" they have done. Especially when I see to it that they are gone. They shall pay for their insulnce [sic]. Finally there shall be silence. Their blood shall be payment!"Jasmine apparently had also told her friends about her plans to kill her parents but none of them believed that she was actually serious about it.What Happened To Jasmine Richardson's And Jeremy At The Trials?During the trials, Jasmine admitted to killing her brother out of mercy as she thought he would be all alone without their parents. She revealed that her brother pleaded for his life as she stabbed him and later Steinke finished him off by cutting his throat open. In the year 2007, Richardson qualified for Intensive Rehabilitation Custody and Supervision (IRCS). But it happened only after the court found her guilty of three counts of first-degree murder. The house in Medicine Hat where Marc, Debra, and Jacob were killed by Jasmine and her boyfriend, JeremyShe then would spend four years in a psychiatric institution followed by another four and a half years under conditional community supervision.During her prison time, Jasmine studied in Calgary Alberta for almost six years. She later attended Mount Royal University, Calgary, Alberta.CBS News reports during Richardson's final appearance in the court, she thanked judge, Scott Brooker of the Court of Queen's Bench.As for Jeremy, in 2008, Jasmine's former boyfriend was found guilty of three counts of first-degree murder and received three concurrent life sentences in prison. The court set the earliest parole date only after 25 years.Jasmine Was Set Free In 2016Jasmine reportedly walked free in May 2016. She could do so only after completing a 10-year sentence that also included rehabilitation and education. At the time of her release, Richardson was 22.When she was still in jail, many people took her as a person unlikely to re-offend for the rest of her life.Jasmine Richardson Relationship With Jeremy SteinkeJeremy had met Jasmine at a punk rock concert. Richardson immediately found him intriguing particularly for his goth lifestyle. Steinke grew up with an alcoholic mother. He furthermore received constant beatings from her partners. He additionally used to get bullied at school. Jasmine's former boyfriend and the murderer of the Richardson family in April 2006.During the trials, the court heard Jeremy at the age of 13 was diagnosed with depression and hyperactivity and later tried to take his own life. As he grew up, he proclaimed himself the 300-year-old werewolf and would wear a vial of blood around his neck. Jeremy also had a user account at the VampireFreaks.com. Old pictures of Jasmine on her Myspace page show the young girl was gradually changing herself to a goth lifestyle clearly under the influence of Steinke. Jasmine and Steinke started their relationship in 2006.Jasmine's parents however forbade her from having any alliance with Steinke.Jeremy continued to serve his prison sentence. Jasmine Richardson is a Canadian woman who gained notoriety due to her involvement in a high-profile criminal case, the Richardson Family Murders. The case unfolded in April 2006 when Jasmine Richardson, then 12 years old, along with her boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke, who was 23, was accused of murdering Jasmine's parents and younger brother in their home in Medicine Hat, Alberta.Jasmine and her boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke. Photo: @Medium (modified by author)/Source: UGJasmine Richardson is believed to be the youngest person in Canada to be convicted on three counts of first-degree murder. As per the Youth Criminal Justice Act of Canada, Jasmine received a penalty of 10 years imprisonment and admission to a psychiatric institution. The jail term has since elapsed, and she is now free. So, where is Jasmine Richardson now?Full nameJasmin RichardsonGenderFemaleDate of birth1994 Age 29 years (as of 2024) BirthplaceMedicine Hat, Alberta, CanadaNationally CanadianHair colourDark brownEye colourDark brownFather Marc RichardsonMother Debra Richardson Brother Tyler JacobsMarital status UnknownJasmine Richardson (age 29 years as of 2024) was born in 1994 in Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada. She was the oldest child of Marc and Debra Richardson.Jasmine Richardson's educationWhile serving her sentence, Jasmine received her education in Calgary, Alberta. In September 2011, she started attending classes at Mount Royal University.Jasmine Richardson's new name became 'poster child'. Photo: @moringcupofmurdur (modified by author)/Source: UGCThe victims who passed away on 23 April 2006 were Jasmine's father, Marc Richardson (42), her mother, Debra Richardson (48), and her little brother, Jacob Richardson (8). Who was Jasmine Richardson's accomplice?Jeremy Steinke gained notoriety due to his involvement in the Richardson Family Murders, the high-profile criminal case in Canada. Steinke was the 23 year old boyfriend of Jasmine Richardson, who was 12 years old at the time of the murders in 2006.The Richardson family lived in Medicine Hat, a city in southeastern Alberta. Jasmine Richardson's life ended when she became involved in a romantic relationship with Jeremy, a man eleven years older than her. The relationship caused concern for her parents, who disapproved of the age difference and the influence Steinke had on their daughter. Steinke, who was 23, was accused of murdering Jasmine's father, Jeremy Steinke, who was 23, was accused of murdering Jasmine's parents and younger brother in their home in Medicine Hat, Alberta.Jasmine and her boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke. Photo: @Medium (modified by author)/Source: UGJJeremy Steinke was charged with three counts of first-degree murder. In 2008, he was convicted on all counts and received a life sentence with no possibility of parole for 25 years. His conviction highlighted the severity of the crime and the legal consequences for adults involved in the murder of a minor's family members.Steinke will be eligible for parole after 25 years. It will be around 2033, and he will be close to 50. According to sources, Jeremy Steinke's new name is Jackson May. What is Jasmine Richardson doing now?After ten years in jail, Jasmine walked free in May 2016 and is presumed to be leading a normal life. She lives in an undisclosed location in Canada, and there is little known about her whereabouts after serving her sentence.Referred to JR in her home country, Jasmine's identity is protected. Jasmine Richardson's new name was dubbed by the media as 'poster child.'Does Jasmine Richardson have Instagram?There is no verified Instagram account associated with Jasmine. Sources state that she is likely to have a secret identity. Finaly,Jasmine Richardson's parents were charged with a tragic and disturbing chapter in Canadian criminal history. It sparked considerable media attention and raised questions about the influence of social factors on criminal behaviour and the legal consequences for juvenile offenders involved in serious crimes.READ ALSO: Meet Laurence Fishburne's daughter and actress, Delilah FishburneBriefly.co.za published an article about Delilah Fishburne, an American actress and celebrity kid. She is famous as the daughter of Laurence Fishburne, a famous American actor, producer, director and playwright.Laurence Fishburne is well known for films such as Black-ish, All the Old Knives and Grownish. Discover what is known about the award-winning actor's daughter. Source: Briefly News Reddit and its partners use cookies and similar technologies to provide you with a better experience. By accepting all cookies, you agree to our use of cookies to deliver and maintain our services and sites, improve the quality of Reddit, personalize Reddit content and advertising, and measure the effectiveness of advertising. By rejecting non-essential cookies, Reddit may still use certain cookies to ensure the proper functionality of our platform. For more information, please see our Cookie Notice and our Privacy Policy. true crime "I have this plan. It begins with me killing them and ends with me living with you."In April 2006, 12-year-old Jasmine Richardson murdered her parents and her eight-year-old brother.After Jasmine's parents, Marc and Debra Richardson, forbade her from dating Jeremy Steinke, who was 23 years old, the 12-year-old decided that murder was the only answer.Before Jasmine met Jeremy, she was just like any other ordinary teenager. The 12-year-old was described as a happy and social girl.Side note - these are the top five true crime documentaries you need to see. Post continues after video.But after meeting Jeremy, who claimed to be a "300-year-old werewolf" and wore a blood-filled vial around his neck, Jasmine's behaviour changed dramatically. She began wearing dark makeup to conceal her young age and described herself online as "Wiccan", "nocturnal" and "insane." While Jasmine had a fairly conventional upbringing, things were very different at home for Jeremy. At school, he was frequently bullied and at home, he was abused by his alcoholic mother's partner.Although it was long believed that Jeremy had devised the plan to kill Jasmine's parents, it was actually Jasmine who first brought up the idea in an email. She also reportedly told friends about her plans to kill her parents. "My Lover's rents are totally unfair; they say that they really care, they don't know what is going on, they just assume," Jeremy wrote on his blog in April 2006. "Their throats I want to slit. Finally there shall be silence. Their blood shall be payment!"Jasmine Richardson and Jeremy Steinke.Just days after posting to his blog, the couple would carry out their plan.After watching movie Natural Born Killers, which follows a young couple as they become serial murderers, Jasmine and her boyfriend carried out their planned massacre. Just two hours later, the pair were seen happily eating in a restaurant. The day after the murder, a young neighbour visited the house for a playdate with Jasmine's eight-year-old brother Jacob. After spotting what he thought was a body through the window, the boy's mother called the police.When police arrived, it was discovered that both Debra and Marc Richardson had been stabbed to death in the basement.Upstairs in his bedroom, eight-year-old Jacob's throat was cut open.At first, Jasmine wasn't even considered as a potential suspect. In fact, officers believed she may have been kidnapped or murdered like her family.But after recovering evidence in her bedroom, Jasmine was identified as the main suspect.The runaway couple were tracked down and soon enough, they were arrested.Jasmine's parents Marc and Debra Richardson. In 2007, Jasmine was found guilty of three counts of first degree murder. At just 13 years old at the time of her conviction, she was sentenced to ten years in prison which included time in a psychiatric institution.On the other hand, Jeremy was sentenced to life in prison without parole for 25 years. When asked why he had murdered Jasmine's family, Jeremy said: "When you find your soulmate, you do anything for them, I did anything."Even while they were in prison, the pair continued to send each other letters, professing their love to one another.Now, over 12 years from the horrific massacre that shocked Medicine Hat, Canada, Jasmine is walking free.She was released on parole in 2016 at the age of 23. If she remains out of trouble, the murders will be removed from her criminal record next year.The now 25-year-old is living in a secret location under a new identity.Although it's been reported that she has responded well to rehabilitation, it is not known whether she is still in contact with Jeremy. Tags: crime-2 jasmine-richardson news-3 news-stories true-crime world-news Although widely known for its beautiful landscapes, Canada once made headlines after a gruesome murder by a teenager due to a tragic love story. Jasmine Richardson, 12 at the time, became the youngest person ever convicted of multiple murders. Discover everything you need to know about her.Jasmine Richardson became the centre of media focus in Canada when her family fell victim to a brutal murder, causing widespread shock and concern throughout the country. Learn more about the Richardsons family murders in this article.Full name Jasmin RichardsonGenderFemaleDate of birth1994Age 29 years old (as of 2023)Current residenceMedicine Hat, Southeast Alberta, CanadaHair colourDark brownEye colourDark brownFather Marc RichardsonMother Debra RichardsonBrother Tyler JacobsMarital status SingleJasmine is a convict from Canada who was involved in a 2006 family murder instance. She is 29 years in 2023. She was 12 years old when she got involved in the gruesome act of murder. Why did Richardson wipe out her entire family? When the Richardson girl started dating their pet groomer, her parents strongly disapproved. Not only was he 11 years older, but he also had some strange beliefs. Steinke claimed to be a 300-year-old vampire and openly talked about liking the taste of blood. Her parents were worried that he would negatively influence their innocent daughter.Richardson and her self-proclaimed werewolf boyfriend planned on how to overcome her parents' objections and continue their relationship. She came up with the idea of killing her parents, and Steinke agreed, suggesting they needed a solid plan. After committing the horrifying act, the two lovers disappeared.How did Jasmine kill her parents?Jasmine reportedly shared her plans to kill her parents with friends, but they thought she was joking. On the night before the murders, the young couple watched a movie called Natural Born Killers, and the next day, on 23 April 2006, they carried out their plan. The murders were discovered by a friend of Jasmine's brother, who went to visit and saw a lifeless body through the window. He quickly ran home and told his mother, who called the police.Jasmine brought to justiceMarc Richardson and Debra Richardson are Jasmine's parents. Photo: @ThecirmereelSource: YoutubeInitially, J.R was seen as a victim of this tragic event, but it was later revealed that she played a big role in the crime along with her former pet groomer and boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke. Evidence in digital messages showed that the two lovers had exchanged correspondence detailing their plans for the murders.The couple was eventually found and arrested while they were running away together. Richardson, who was only 13 at the time of the conviction, received a maximum sentence allowed by the Youth Criminal Justice Act, which was ten years in prison. She was found guilty of three counts of first-degree murder, despite pleading not guilty.Jeremy was sentenced to life in prison without parole for 25 years. Despite being incarcerated, the two continued their relationship through letters and even promised to marry each other.Where is Jasmine Richardson today?After receiving extensive rehabilitation and treatment, she was released from prison in 2011. A series of psychiatric evaluations revealed that she had been diagnosed with conduct disorder and oppositional defiant disorder. While she served the remainder of her sentence under conditional supervision in the community, Jasmine enrolled as a freshman at Mount Royal University in Calgary, Alberta. Her official sentence was completed in 2016, marking her final court appearance, it was noted that Jasmine only expressed gratitude towards the judge but did not show remorse for her crimes. Officer Bret, one of the first responders at the crime scene, expressed concerns and hoped that she hadn't deceived the criminal justice system. However, her attorney believed she had undergone effective rehabilitation and was unlikely to re-offend. What did Jasmine Richardson do? She is believed to have orchestrated her parents' murder, killing her brother herself and having her boyfriend participate in the killing of her parents.Where is Jasmine Richardson now? After serving a 10-year sentence, she was released in 2016 and currently resides in an undisclosed location within the community. What is Jasmine Richardson doing now? She is believed to be living quietly in the community at a secret location.What is Jasmine Richardson's new name? Referred to as "JR" in her home country, Jasmine's identity is protected, and she is being called "a poster child."Does Jasmine Richardson have Instagram? She doesn't have an official Instagram account. However, several accounts under her name exist.How did Jasmine Richardson meet Jeremy Steinke? The two reportedly met at a punk rock show.Who were the parents of Jasmine Richardson? Her mother was Debra Richardson, while her father was Marc Richardson.How many years did Jasmine Richardson get? She was sentenced to 10 years in prison, the maximum allowed under the law for someone her age.Despite the brutal and horrifying incident of her parent's murder, Jasmine Richardson was released from prison after a serving ten years in jail, owing to the fact that she was a minor at the time of the act. Her boyfriend continues to serve time without a possibility of parole.Yen.com.gh recently published an article on the intriguing story of Charlonda Jenkins, the ex-wife of the notorious convicted killer Nikko Jenkins. Charlonda is entangled in a web of crime, connected to a family of crime lords.The Jenkin son, Charlonda's ex-husband, is a known spree killer and death row convict. His ex-wife, on the other hand, has faced the consequences, but not to the extent of severe punishment, as she has only been confined to correctional centres. Source: YEN.com.gh Although widely known for its beautiful landscapes, Canada once made headlines after a gruesome murder by a teenager due to a tragic love story. Jasmine Richardson, 12 at the time, became the youngest person ever convicted of multiple murders. Discover everything you need to know about her.Jasmine Richardson and her boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke. Photo: @sketur93, @alexissTyler on Twitter (modified by author)/Source: UGCIn her early teenage, Jasmine Richardson became the centre of media focus in Canada when her family fell victim to a brutal murder, causing widespread shock and concern throughout the country. Learn more about the Richardsons family murders in this article.Full name Jasmin RichardsonGenderFemaleDate of birth1994Age 29 years old (as of 2023)Current residenceMedicine Hat, Southeast Alberta, CanadaHair colourDark brownEye colourDark brownFather Marc RichardsonMother Debra RichardsonBrother Tyler JacobsMarital status SingleJasmine is a convict from Canada who was involved in a 2006 family murder instance. She is 29 years in 2023. She was 12 years old when she got involved in the gruesome act of murder. Why did Richardson wipe out her entire family? When the Richardson girl started dating their pet groomer, her parents strongly disapproved. Not only was he 11 years older, but he also had some strange beliefs. Steinke claimed to be a 300-year-old vampire and openly talked about liking the taste of blood. Her parents were worried that he would negatively influence their innocent daughter.Richardson and her self-proclaimed werewolf boyfriend planned on how to overcome her parents' objections and continue their relationship. She came up with the idea of killing her parents, and Steinke agreed, suggesting they needed a solid plan. After committing the horrifying act, the two lovers disappeared.How did Jasmine kill her parents?Jasmine reportedly shared her plans to kill her parents with friends, but they thought she was joking. On the night before the murders, the young couple watched a movie called Natural Born Killers, and the next day, on 23 April 2006, they carried out their plan. The murders were discovered by a friend of Jasmine's brother, who went to visit and saw a lifeless body through the window. He quickly ran home and told his mother, who called the police.Jasmine brought to justiceMarc Richardson and Debra Richardson are Jasmine's parents. Photo: @ThecirmereelSource: YoutubeInitially, J.R was seen as a victim of this tragic event, but it was later revealed that she played a big role in the crime along with her former pet groomer and boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke. Evidence in digital messages showed that the two lovers had exchanged correspondence detailing their plans for the murders.The couple was eventually found and arrested while they were running away together. Richardson, who was only 13 at the time of the conviction, received a maximum sentence allowed by the Youth Criminal Justice Act, which was ten years in prison. She was found guilty of three counts of first-degree murder, despite pleading not guilty.Jeremy was sentenced to life in prison without parole for 25 years. Despite being incarcerated, the two continued their relationship through letters and even promised to marry each other.Where is Jasmine Richardson today?After receiving extensive rehabilitation and treatment, she was released from prison in 2011. A series of psychiatric evaluations revealed that she had been diagnosed with conduct disorder and oppositional defiant disorder. While she served the remainder of her sentence under conditional supervision in the community, Jasmine enrolled as a freshman at Mount Royal University in Calgary, Alberta. Her official sentence was completed in 2016, marking her final release from the justice system.During her final court appearance, it was noted that Jasmine only expressed gratitude towards the judge but did not show remorse for her crimes. Officer Bret, one of the first responders at the crime scene, expressed concerns and hoped that she hadn't deceived the criminal justice system. However, her attorney believed she had undergone effective rehabilitation and was unlikely to re-offend. What did Jasmine Richardson do? She is believed to have orchestrated her parents' murder, killing her brother herself and having her boyfriend participate in the killing of her parents.Where is Jasmine Richardson now? After serving a 10-year sentence, she was released in 2016 and currently resides in an undisclosed location within the community. What is Jasmine Richardson doing now? She is believed to be living quietly in the community at a secret location.What is Jasmine Richardson's new name? Referred to as "JR" in her home country, Jasmine's identity is protected, and she is being called "a poster child."Does Jasmine Richardson have Instagram? She doesn't have an official Instagram account. However, several accounts under her name exist.How did Jasmine Richardson meet Jeremy Steinke? The two reportedly met at a punk rock show.Who were the parents of Jasmine Richardson? Her mother was Debra Richardson, while her father was Marc Richardson.How many years did Jasmine Richardson get? She was sentenced to 10 years in prison, the maximum allowed under the law for someone her age.Despite the brutal and horrifying incident of her parent's murder, Jasmine Richardson was released from prison after a serving ten years in jail, owing to the fact that she was a minor at the time of the act. Her boyfriend continues to serve time without a possibility of parole.Yen.com.gh recently published an article on the intriguing story of Charlonda Jenkins, the ex-wife of the notorious convicted killer Nikko Jenkins. Charlonda is entangled in a web of crime, connected to a family of crime lords.The Jenkin son, Charlonda's ex-husband, is a known spree killer and death row convict. His ex-wife, on the other hand, has faced the consequences, but not to the extent of severe punishment, as she has only been confined to correctional centres. Source: YEN.com.gh In 2006, the bodies of Marc Richardson, Debra Richardson, and their young son, Tyler, were discovered in their home in Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada. The horrific crime was orchestrated by their own daughter, 12-year-old Jasmine Richardson, along with her 23-year-old boyfriend, Jeremy Steinke. Both were convicted of three counts of first-degree murder, with the case shocking the nation and sparking a conversation about youth involvement in violent crimes. "Jasmine-richardson-12-v0-blpqoux2gfkaf" by Catastrophicis licensed under CC BY-SA 4.0. To view a copy of this license, visit and BackgroundJasmine Richardson, influenced by the goth subculture and her relationship with Steinke, was drawn into a dark plot that culminated in the death of her family. Meanwhile, Steinke's troubled past, marked by drug use and violent tendencies, made him a willing participant in the blueprint of the murders. Their shared disdain for authority and a warped perception of love further fueled their heinous actions.The MurdersOn that fateful April night, the duo enacted their plans with lethal precision, killing each member of the Richardson family. Fueled by Jasmine's displeasure with her parents' disapproval of Steinke, the brutal attacks left a permanent mark on the community. The aftermath saw their attempted escape, subsequent capture, and the international media storm that followed.Legal OutcomeThe legal proceedings culminated in Jasmine being sentenced to a 10-year Intensive Rehabilitative Custody and Supervision program, the maximum for underage offenders. On the other hand, Steinke received three consecutive life sentences, with the potential for parole after 25 years. Indicators of remorse and the possibility of rehabilitation were continuously evaluated during Jasmine's trial and sentence reviews.Media CoverageThis gruesome case has been highlighted in a variety of true crime TV shows, including Investigation Discovery and Killer Kids, drawing attention to the complex psychological and social factors at play. These narratives help demystify how such young individuals could be drawn into perpetrating brutal acts of violence.Where Is Jasmine Richardson Now?Jasmine Richardson was released from her rehabilitative program in 2016. For more information about her case, you can visit the Wikipedia page on the Richardson family murders. Thanks to successful rehabilitation, her record was expunged in 2020. Currently, Jasmine maintains a life of relative obscurity, with her past firmly behind her. During a segment of her reintegration process, she attended Mount Royal University, albeit with the stigma of her past ever-looming.Exploring the whereabouts and life trajectory of Jasmine Richardson reveals significant insights into the complexities of juvenile crime and rehabilitation. Her story highlights the challenges within the criminal justice and mental health systems in addressing young offenders. Understanding her journey since her release emphasizes the potential for reintegration and the influence of early interventions. Stay engaged with evolving narratives like Jasmine's to better comprehend societal issues and inspire informed discussions. Additionally, we post on luxury real estate and celebrity homes on our Instagram, Twitter, Facebook, Pinterest, TikTok, and YouTube. Also, please follow us on each of these.